

Tuesday Technique: The Blind Hem

By: grosgrain

<http://www.burdastyle.com/techniques/tuesday-technique-the-blind-hem>

---

To see more techniques visit Grosgrain Look Mom No Hems! You know all those settings on your sewing machine that you just ignore because you don't know what they heck they're there for? Well, I thought I'd throw my two cents in and perhaps make periodic technique posts to show you something that you never thought you could do. When I first started sewing I would look at the bottom of dresses in the stores and wonder what the heck did they do to make that hem? There's like....no stitch! So I did a little online research and found that there's this little thing called a 'blind hem'. And your sewing machine does it for you. This little trick is great for us short gals who can't find a great fitting pair of pants to save her life. If it's a good price, chances are it's too long. I can't tell you how many Forever 21 pants I've hemmed this way. If any of you would like to finish your hems with a little more style, try this tutorial below with a piece of scrap material.

---

Step 1 — Video Steps

Watch video for full tutorial

---

BurdaStyle

Tuesday Technique: The Blind Hem