

My Overnight/Handbag Bag

By: prettypetite175

<http://www.burdastyle.com/projects/my-overnighthandbag-bag>

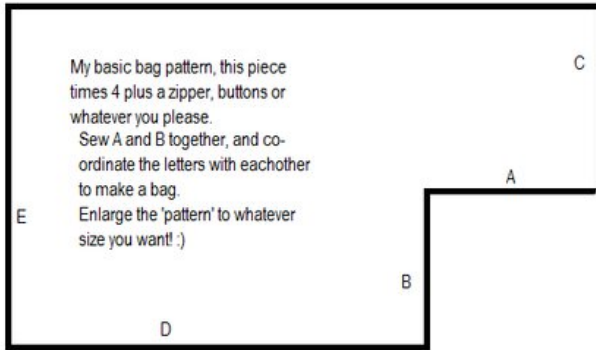

The overnight bag I was using as my handbag (a necessity I assure you) died a horrible, painful death through over use, so I decided to make my own, it was great for a while, however my inept sewing skills was the death of it. Practice makes perfect though! Eventually I will make a bag which will last despite my sewing skills!

Materials

I used the cheapest silk/satin I could find for the lining and a cotton for the outer, next time I think a much stronger material would be better, I feel more of a canvas type material would be best for hand/overnight bags however part of sewing is being creative and experimenting with different fabrics! :)

Step 1 — My Overight/ Hand baggie!

Hi,

Pretty much all the instructions you'll need for this extremely simple bag is on the pseudo pattern I made for it.

Have fun! Sewing is all about creativity and experimentation so you can turn my very basic template into any size or style bag you like, if you'd like a rounded off clutch, with enough room to actually fit you phone and lipgloss in then use a sturdier fabric and cut the square off the corner's and play around with it!

Not included on the pattern is the handles, which you can do whatever with, make sure they're attached sturdily though!

BurdaStyle

My Overnight/Handbag Bag