The first thing I do is ask myself ‘what do I need?’ For example, I’ve been going a lot to a fitness dance type of class and I just did not want to wear the typical boring fitness outfit. So I created for myself some very cute short skirts that I could wear on top of my leggings. I call them ‘galaxy hips.’ I had tons of fun doing them and you can see the pictures on my blog if you want.

There’s a lovely girl there called Sasha, she’s very cool and we love to discuss new techniques and trends and I just find the whole place very inspiring. The third way is to browse commercial patterns. I especially love to check online for new independent pattern designers. They usually give very good instructions and put so much love into their work. The fourth way is to go window-shopping. I’ll just go to my local shopping center and check the new babies on display. Finally, I just look at what people wears in the streets and see how I can reproduce it and turn it into something that would just look fantastic for myself.
